

This report aims to define the basic regulatory principles and common visions on renewables gas. Furthermore, the lesson learnt from the past energy sector shows that it's better to set first the market rules, legal and regulatory framework to insure a fair access to the market to any new energy actor and a fair and transparent competitiveness. Furthermore setting the regulatory basics will avoid any natural monopoly that will be in place if an investor owns the majority of the infrastructure property's shares.